Closing Exercises in Grammar Schools Remarkable Display of Work by Pupils—High School Program

Synopsis of Senior week:
Sunday, June 18, High School Auditorium, 7:30 p. m.—Baccalaureate sermon, Rev. Alfred Hare.
Tuesday, June 20, High School Auditorium, 8 p. m.—Class day exercises.
Thursday, June 22, High School Auditorium, 8 p. m.—Commencement exercises.

SIXTH STREET SCHOOL.

On Wednesday the Sixth street school held its exhibition and exercises for the completion of the school year. The attendance was exceptionally large, and the visitors very appreciative of the display of work and the entertainment provided for them.

A detailed account of both exhibit and program will be given in next week's issue.

GRADUATES AND FACULTY ENTERTAINED.

The mothers of the members of the graduating class of the Glendale Union high school very pleasantly entertained the Senior class and the faculty of the school in G. A. R. hall on Glendale avenue, last Saturday evening. The company gathered at an early hour and at 6:30 a sumptuous dinner was served. Following the repast toasts were given, with Dwight Stevenson as toastmaster, and short addresses were delivered by all of the members of the faculty present and by the following students, Owen Emery, Pearl Goode, Grace Grady, Evelyn Ryan, Emma Pulliam, Granville McClure, George Mitchell, Sol Rehart and Fay Stone. The hall was prettily decorated with many flowers and greenery, the work having been done by the hostesses.

Those in charge of the affair were Mrs. C. O. Pulliam, Mrs. Mary Rehart, Mrs. Andrew Stevenson, Mrs. E. U. Emery, Mrs. A. P. Stone, Mrs. E. M. McClure, Mrs. M. O. Ryan, Mrs. Alex. Mitchell, Mrs. E. B. Elias and Mrs. E. D. Goode.

The members of the Senior class present were Misses Emily Elias, Ruth Farrell, Pearl Goode, Grace Grady, Leeta McCoy, Lucile Parker, Evelyn Ryan, Myrtle Pulliam, Emma Pulliam, Eva Spencer, Ivy Verry, Gertrude Ward, Messrs. Owen Emery, Granville McClure, George Mitchell, Frank Mosher, Sol Rehart, Dwight Stevenson, Fay Stone, Arthur Taylor and Raymond Todd.

FOURTH STREET SCHOOL.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the school was thrown open for the inspection of parents and friends.

Those who took advantage of the opportunity came away filled with admiration for the work accomplished by the pupils and teachers.

From the first grade to the eighth the exhibition of work is truly remarkable and almost unbelievable. All of the grades have a splendid display of regular art work, comprising water color, pencil, crayon and charcoal, in landscape, nature and still life studies. The upper grades have some fine outline maps to their credit, done both in color and relief.

This line of work is invaluable in cultivating the tastes and the ethical side of child life, bringing many a knowledge of the finer things that they might otherwise never have known.

Aside from the work mentioned above, the first grade has an admirable display of models, tiny doll hammocks woven by hand, rag rugs of a miniature size, woven mats, paper doll sunbonnet babies, and many others. A make-believe circus attracts the most attention, a real circus tent in the field of sawdust, containing a menagerie, clowns and acrobats.

The second and third grades, fashioned an eight-room doll house, fully furnished and inhabited. It contains carpets, wallpaper, curtains, drapes, and all necessary articles of furniture, each room being perfectly complete. It typifies a careful study of color harmony, ventilation and room arrangement.

The work of the next two grades is especially marked by the Indian basket work, for which enough cannot be said. The stencil designs are excellent in form, color and artistic application.

In the sixth grade the girls have been taught the rudiments of sewing, and the boys sloyd work, and both sets of models show great adaptability for the work.

Particular praise must be accorded the seventh and eighth grade pupils for their work along the above mentioned lines. Aside from the general art work, which is excellent, they have accomplished admirable results in sewing and sloyd.

The girls have made the daintiest garments possible, which are not only dainty, but most practical, and can be taken home and put into active service.

All of the model books show blocks of the most careful work, illustrating various stitches.

The boys have made good, solid substantial and useful articles of furniture, all of them strong enough for every-day use, all built on the best of lines, and beautifully stained—pieces of furniture any mother would be proud to have in her home.

There are bookcases with glass doors, dressing tables with mirrors, tabourets, tables, desks, stands, settees, and a number of other pieces, and in closing this part of my description I want to say that no praise I have given has been too extravagant. If you yourself visited the exhibition, you will know this, and if any of us can aid in any way the good, practical work that is being carried on in our Glendale schools, let us by all means do so.

Tuesday afternoon the pupils of the school presented for the pleasure of their visitors a very quaint and dainty program, which was as follows:

Orchestra selections.

First and second grades—Group of nature songs.

Second and third grades—Group of nature songs.

Fourth grade—"Summer Sea" (Risoletti); "Summer Song" (Verdi);

The eighth grade has completed its course of work under the able supervision of Mrs. M. O. Ryan, and the following pupils will graduate from the school this year:—Hester Bidwell, Wakefield B. Byrkit, Jessie Craig, Cordelia Croad, Vivian B. Engle, Walter Eves, Olin Dow, Arthur Freitag, Eugene Gillies, George Grist, Lisle Johnson, Walter Krug, Lorin Litchfield, Benjamin Nichols, Lawrence Olivias, Anna Rehart, John Stauffacher, Esther Sinclair, Ralph Moore.

COMPLETES UP-TO-DATE RESIDENCE.

Mrs. Mary A. Ayers has just completed a home-like house next to her own residence on Palmer avenue which she offers for sale, but unlike many of the houses built with the intention of selling, it is complete, in every detail and replete with all those little conveniences dear to the heart of the housewife. The house has a solid concrete foundation with a brick superstructure upon which rests the story and a half frame building of six completed rooms with ample space upstairs for two more. A porch runs the whole breadth of the house (32 feet) having a depth of eight feet. A fine oak door with oval glass panel opens into the living room, 17 by 26 feet. This room is beautifully finished in imitation oak and leather, Mission style, has a nine-foot ceiling, built-in book cases, pressed brick fireplace and numerous other up-to-date details which add to the harmony of the whole and furnish home comforts.

Two large bedrooms are on this floor and between them the bathroom 5 by 11. The kitchen is a model of convenience with closets for utensils and supplies. One bedroom is completed upstairs with a western outlook upon the Griffith Park hills, the finish of this apartment being suitable for a ladies chamber. Windows all over the house are double hung and full screened. All rooms are piped and wired for gas and electricity.

GOOD GOVERNMENT LEAGUE MEETING.

Thursday evening, June 29th, at K. of P. hall, the Good Government League of Glendale will have an open meeting to which everybody is invited. The meeting will be addressed by Lewis R. Works and Geo. H. Dunlop, members of the organization in Los Angeles, and other features of entertainment will be included in the program. Mr. C. O. Pulliam is president of the local organization.

The Sunday school gave a fine program last Sunday evening before a large congregation in observance of Children's Day. Mrs. O. W. Tarr and the teachers deserve much credit for their work. Under the able superintendency of Mr. C. C. Arrowsmith the school is making gratifying progress. He has announced a summer campaign which promises to be exceedingly interesting. Something new and attractive each Sunday is promised.

The Woman's Aid Society will have an all day meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stamps, 1304 Lomita avenue, Thursday, June 15, beginning at ten a. m. and continuing until four p. m. The ladies are requested to bring their lunch and come prepared to sew. All the women of the church and congregation are invited. Those who can come for only part of the time will be welcome.

Next Sunday morning the Rev. F. T. Slaton, pastor of the First Baptist church, Birmingham, Ala., and teacher of a large men's class in the Sunday school, a delegate to the international Sunday School convention in San Francisco, will speak on adult Bible class work. There will be no preaching service in the evening on account of the baccalaureate sermon for the graduating class of the high school in high school auditorium. The Young People's meeting will be held as usual at 6:45.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

A very interesting and important session was held Tuesday night. The questions of water and public parks were discussed, but action was deferred till a later date. Chairman Stuffed of the lighting committee was instructed to see about street lights on Sixth street from the Childs Tract line to Verdugo road.

Messrs. A. B. Heacock and Frank Showalter were appointed on the publicity committee.

Five new members were received. The following gentlemen were appointed a committee to make preliminary inquiries as to the banquet the Chamber proposes, having soon, and to report at the next meeting: J. N. McGillis, F. Showalter, T. W. Watson, W. A. Anderson, W. D. Buck.

A committee of three, consisting of E. D. Goode, F. R. Sinclair and E. U. Emery, was appointed to appear before the Board of Trustees to act in conjunction with committees of other bodies regarding the Verdugo wash.

CONCERT AT HIGH SCHOOL.

The auditorium at the high school was filled last Friday evening with an appreciative audience and the evening's program was all that was promised. The work of the chorus under the direction of Mrs. Gibson was excellent. The boys' orchestra acquitted themselves well and were heartily enjoyed. Julius Kranz was at his best which is saying much for his numbers on the program. The performance of Miss Quillet on the harp was a revelation to the large number in the audience who were not familiar with the possibilities of that fine old instrument, and the lady was encored enthusiastically. Mr. Merrill's singing was heartily enjoyed, his rendering of "On the Road to Mandalay" being particularly appreciated. Altogether the concert was a high class affair reflecting great credit upon all connected with it.

Attention is called to the bank statements published in this issue. All of them show a remarkable growth in deposits, which speaks well for the prosperity of the people and the solidity of our financial institutions.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB NOTES.

"The Emerson Club," a one-act comedy, was staged by the literary section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, as its first public program, last Tuesday.

"The Emerson Club" met at the home of Mrs. Milton (Mrs. McNutt) to continue reading Emerson's "beautiful essay on Love."

Mrs. Hunter (Mrs. Frank Grosvenor) could not remember just where the reading began, as she is studying Browning and Shakespeare at her other club, and was a little confused with respect to the progress made in each.

Mrs. Wyeth (Mrs. Margaret Hawken) could scarcely keep awake during the first part of the reading, and kept the house in an uproar with her misfit remarks.

Mrs. Ralph Meeker and Mrs. Gee were very ruddy, and found it impossible to concentrate their attention on the reading of the essay, for it reminded them so forcibly of their townsman that they were continually making ridiculous comments, causing great hilarity in the class.

It was very evident to Mrs. Mertens that Emerson didn't know what he was talking about, and she proposed that the club study some other author.

—Mr. Howells, for instance—but she was quickly reminded that living authors were not studied in "our set," and that all the dead ones except Emerson were taken by other clubs.

Mrs. Church seriously asked "whether women can always know what men think, and remarked that Emerson, being a man, would be more likely to judge men fairly."

Large picture hats, a quaint little bonnet, and hobble skirts, to say nothing of the monkey and the dog, added to the make-up of the performers.

Mrs. Gridley, the president, provided the music for the occasion. A piano duet by Miss Margaret Dick and Miss Macbeth Pigg and a solo by Miss Dick were well rendered and graciously received.

The stage settings and decorations were arranged by Mrs. McNutt and Mrs. Newcomb, and the refreshments were in charge of Mrs. Meeker.

The club greatly regretted the absence of Mrs. Gridley, due to illness, and upon the suggestion of Mrs. Wells the club sent her a note of greetings and sympathy, accompanied by a bouquet of carnations from the literary section.

Among the guests were Mrs. Foss, Mrs. Harry Howe and mother, Mrs. J. N. Brown, Miss Wanda Gee and Miss Lorraine Mitchell.

Mrs. Tower presided at the business meeting, and Mrs. Gee had charge of the program.

"UNDER THE MULBERRY TREE."

A beautiful and fitting close to a most successful year, was the banquet given last Monday evening to the B. F. L. O. at the home of Miss Ruth Byram, a charter member.

Beneath great branches of several huge mulberry trees which droop to the ground like willows, many Chinese lanterns were hung like gaudy fire flies, lighting a wonderful table set for fifty.

Sweet peas, hundreds of them, stood in rows ready for a flight across the board as so many sunbonnet babies. Quaint faces of pansies formed centerpieces as well as place cards and mistletoe ferns found indefinite places.

It was a glimpse of rare beauty, worthy of delighted exclamations from every guest as they marched to their respective places. Fairland could be no lovelier, or blossoms sweeter, or faces happier. Small wonder the excellent spread was so enjoyed.

A spirit of dignity, of bonhomie, drew from each the best there was to give of charm, of grace, and bright wit.

The event was a joy to those long in P. E. O. and gave to the several new members a foretaste of what the hospitality of the sisterhood really stands for.

Mrs. Edith Hunchberger, as president of the chapter and toastmistress, gave the address of welcome. Before the close of the evening, toasts were responded to by Dr. A. L. Bryant, Dr. Ray Chase, Dr. Robert Blackburn, Mr. Will Goss, Mr. John Pirtle, Mr. E. U. Emery, and an original poem, "My Mother," was given by Mr. E. D. Goode.

Mrs. Elizabeth Moyle touched the hearts of all, not as the cooks had done but by words of fraternal love that meant much to those with whom she has so long been associated in the chapter.

Mrs. Hunchberger read the meaning of P. E. O. as given by "The Lancet" during the recent convention held in Highland Park, and attended by hundreds of members from all over the state.

Great praise is due the committees, and all who helped in producing an affair at once so lovely, so enjoyable, and so thoroughly good in every way. Like "The Rugles in the Rear," the participants will never forget it.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING.

Mrs. M. T. Hartley has sold her home on Verdugo road below Fourth street, consisting of a frame cottage and an acre of land to W. M. Platt, of Tori, who occupies the place.

Mr. Roscoe E. Land of Bakersfield is building a Swiss chalet on Eleventh street.

Lillian J. Empey is building a 1-story five-room cottage on Alexander street west of Remington, West Glendale, to cost $2100. Commonwealth Home Builders, contractors.

YOUNG PEOPLE WED.

At the residence of the bride's parents, the Vert Monte, Wednesday evening of last week, Miss Nancy Snow was married to Mr. Ross Jennings of Alhambra, Cal., the ceremony being performed by Rev. F. G. Stevens of Pasadena. The rooms of the Vert Monte were beautifully decorated for the occasion, the ceremony taking place under a wedding bell having a background of greenery. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Snow. The bride wore a gown of chiffon over champagne colored messaline and carried a bouquet of bridesmaid roses and ferns. Her only ornament was a jeweled locket, a gift of the groom. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Edith, who wore a soft blue silk and carried white carnations. Mr. Roberts of Los Angeles was "best man." The mother of the groom came all the way from British Columbia to be present at the happy event; she was elegantly gowned in rich black ecru silk. Among the guests present from Santa Monica, the former home of the bride, were Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Mervin, Mrs. S. M. Holbert and daughter, Mr. H. L. Mitchell (the bride's uncle), Miss Pearl Hunting and Miss Pearl Steffy. After the ceremony the young couple left for Los Angeles from whence they went to Catalina for a brief honeymoon. They will be at home in Alhambra where Mr. Jennings is manager of the local hardware store.

GLENDALE SQUAD DISBAND.

After having completed the most successful season in the history of the school, the Glendale aggregation of diamond artists disbanded last Saturday with a record of seven games out of nine played to their credit.

The team this year was composed of almost new material, as only four veterans, Littell, Knight, Askeland and Mitchell were left as a nucleus for the year's team. In fact, at the beginning of the season the prospects of having a winning team were so dubious that the team withdrew from the city league and played an independent schedule, but before the close of the season Coach Howe had rounded into shape one of the best teams which ever represented this institution.

The two pitchers, Mitchell and Taylor heaved good ball and were well supported by their team-mates. Their delivery was received by Captain Knight. Littell at short stop distinguished himself by his heady and consistent playing. Among the teams to go down to defeat at the hands of the team were the L. A. Military Academy and the crack Redondo team. Left field was held down by the husky Moser. The prospects for a good team next year are very bright.

JUVENILE REPROBATES.

Marshall Miller was called upon the other day to investigate a case of petty pilfering, and the trail led to a trio of youngsters, two boys and a girl, 9, 8 and 6 years old, respectively, whom he gathered in and brought before Recorder Whomes. The judge sent for the parents of the children, a boy and girl belonging to a family on Isabel street, while the other boy came from Lomita Park. When the women appeared the judge read them a lecture which if acted upon will do them great good. It was clearly a case of almost criminal carelessness upon the part of the parents who confessed that they did not know where the children spent their nights, the six-year-old girl had recently spent a night out of doors without the mother apparently feeling any alarm over the incident. The marshal recovered a sack full of plunder which the children had gathered in from various sources, the entire lot having little value. The judge turned them over to the parents with injunction as to their own responsibility.

The Presbyterian Aid Society invites all who are interested, to earn or save a dollar toward our church fund, and bring it, with their experience in earning it, to the church aid social June 30th. The place of holding the social will be announced later.

Mr. E. U. Emery of Kenwood was in Patton the first of the week on an urgent business trip.

CITY TRUSTEES

Usual Routine—The Garbage Question Discussed—Complaints Received, Etc.

All members present. The usual list of demands, the principal one being for $553.14 for power for May lighting department. The matter of cess pool in alley back of the east side of Brand between Third and Fourth was referred to police and sanitary committee. The garbage question was discussed at some length and the street superintendent was instructed to secure a lot on which to dump the same. The street superintendent authorized to put in culverts at his discretion on Louise and First streets. The city attorney reported having advertised in Glendale and Los Angeles papers for plans for proposed city hall.

A communication was received from E. C. Frank and others requesting a change of grade on East Rock road, also another communication from Mary E. Dodge and Lillian S. Wells protesting against proposed change. The matter was referred to the city engineer. A communication was received from Purcell, Gray and Gale to the effect that as their attorney had reported bond proceedings regular, they are prepared to take bonds in accordance with their bid. A communication was received from J. E. Osborne complaining of the water pressure on Doran street, placed on file. An ordinance amending section two of Ordinance No. 5 was taken up, read third time and passed.

The matter of accepting deeds to certain proposed alleys located on tract 618, was referred to city engineer and board of public works. Trustee Lane offered resolution approving map of tract 1309 and accepting on behalf of the city the streets and alleys shown thereon: read and adopted. The board of public works was instructed to look into the matter of securing necessary land on Brand boulevard between Sixth and Ninth streets for sidewalk purposes. The city clerk and treasurer were instructed to transfer the sum of $1787.50 from the electric light fund to the electric light works principal and interest fund.

The city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids to furnish the lighting department with a carload of poles.

Mr. Lane called the attention of the trustees to the fact that the state railroad commission is at present in Los Angeles and suggested the possibility that if their attention was called to certain conditions in Glendale, they might take action looking toward the settlement of the matter. It was referred to the city attorney to handle according to his discretion.

STORM WATER DISTRICT MEETING.

There was a meeting at Odd Fellows hall last Thursday evening, of citizens interested in the proposed storm water district which it is proposed to establish for the purpose of caring for the Verdugo Wash. A number of Casa Verdugo people were present and there was a general interchange of views. The matter comes up before the supervisors on July 25 next. The law requires publication of the date of hearing for a period of 20 days previous to its being held. There will no doubt be a great many protests entered.

RE-UNION CLASS OF '84.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Banker attended last Friday evening a reunion of the members of the graduating class of 1884 of the Los Angeles high school of which Mrs. Banker was a member. The meeting was at the home of Miss Jessie Yarnell. The number in the class originally was 25, of whom two have died and others are scattered over the world in various places, two of them being in Europe. Those who assembled and renewed old friendships were few in number, but the occasion was an enjoyable one and long to be remembered by those present.

Mr. E. H. Kerker is now filling a position with the Los Angeles press as manager of routes, his duties taking him to various parts of the county in looking after circulation in outside territory.

GLENDAL, CAL., JUNE 16, 1911

Alhambra voters have authorized the issue of $55,000 bonds to install agricultural, polytechnic and domestic science in the high school course and to provide land, buildings and equipment. Also the sum of $6000 for grammar school purposes.

A story is going the rounds of the newspapers of a recent meeting of the presidents of twenty of the large business concerns of the country and out of that number twelve of them had been farmer boys. It would be of further interest to know what proportion of them had received a college or even a high school education. It is a safe guess that such would be in the minority. If this were the fact, it would not prove the uselessness of such higher education, of course, it would merely tend to show that it is not essential to material success.

Mr. W. J. Bryan, who will be remembered as having been a few times candidate for president, is quoted as saying that President Taft "packed the supreme court in the interest of the trust." Mr. Bryan has learned a few things since he first made the race for the presidency on a free trade and free silver platform, but he still talks twice while he thinks once. The men whom President Taft has placed upon the supreme court, bench are no better probably than their associates beside whom they sit, but it will be difficult to make intelligent people believe that President Taft selected Justice Hughes or Chief Justice White because of their subservience to the trusts.

ORDINANCE NEEDED.

The city of South Pasadena recently passed an ordinance whereby the owners of vacant lots are required to have them cleaned of dry grass and weeds. We believe that when this matter has been agitated in Glendale, the city attorney at the time advised this could not be legally done. If South Pasadena can enforce such an ordinance, it follows, of course, that Glendale can do the same. The matter is apparently very simple in its application; notice being served upon the owner of the lot, he cleans it up or the city has it done at his expense, the charge being a lien upon the property. Glendale needs such an ordinance and needs it at once. In a short time the dead grass will be an invitation to danger from fire and the work of cleaning off the vacant lots should begin at once. Let us have the ordinance.

LEMONS TEN DOLLARS A BOX.

There may be Californians interested in the lemon growing industry who rejoice that a combination of hot weather and a shortage in supply has forced the price of lemons in Chicago up to near ten dollars a box. They are probably the class who also rejoice at the increase of duty from one cent to one and a half cents a pound. At the time this increase was proposed we expressed our belief that it was too much; that one cent a pound should be accepted as satisfactory by California. The present shortage in the eastern market is attributed to the tariff. It is a very evident proposition that an article which has become almost a necessity for summer use, should be allowed to move freely from one country to another when and where it is needed; and as this truth permeates the minds of the people of the United States, they will demand that the artificial barrier erected by the tariff between producer and consumer shall be removed. And when this is done the last condition of the lemon grower will be worse than the first, although possibly not altogether deplorable. California through its selfish position in regard to the tariff and through the willingness of its representatives in both houses of congress to accept the program of Mr. Aldrich and trade everything they had to secure what their constituents wanted, has gained some temporary victories, but the people of California ought to remember that no question is settled until it is settled right. If the people of Chicago are forced to pay ten dollars a box for lemons by reason of a prohibitive tariff on the foreign article there is evidently something wrong about the tariff. The protective tariff is built upon a principle which does not aim at robbing the consumer, and when its application to any particular article works out that way, it justifies the attacks of its enemies.

NEWSPAPER WINS OUT.

The Lankershim Laconic lost eleven of its principal advertisers in one week and the next week, like the cat, they came back. And thereby hangs a tale as the man said of the comet. Possibly our understanding of the matter may not be absolutely correct, but it seems to have been about this. A certain land company promoting a big enterprise in the valley beyond Lankershim and desirous of building a railroad thereto, desired to be a benefactor to Lankershim—for a consideration, say, of twenty thousand dollars, possibly more. The payment of this bonus was objected to by the newspaper on grounds that to the editor seemed reasonable. But not so did they impress the promotion company; which took umbrage at the stand taken by the editor and decreed that hereafter his name should be Denis, or in other words, he should be put out of business. To bring this about certain advertisers were hypnotized into withdrawing their support from the paper, which was represented as an "enemy to the community," with the result as stated. No sooner had the paper appeared, however, with its blank advertising spaces than the people began to inquire what it meant and were soon supplied with the answer. The business concerns which had entered into the conspiracy to boycott the paper were informed that the boycott is capable of working both ways and that they had better hedge, and they did. This is only an outline of the story but it is enough to point a moral. The relations between a newspaper and its patrons should be mutually helpful. But advertisers should recognize the fact that although their patronage may be the chief factor in the support of the paper, their wishes in regard to its policy need not be paramount with the editor. The editorial policy of the paper may not please them, but they have the right of protest and beyond that should not go. A newspaper independent enough to stand by its opinions whether they be popular or not is a valuable asset to any community, worth far more than the shiny sheet which can only be depended on to sway with every passing breeze of popular sentiment. We congratulate the Laconic.

WHY THEY FAIL.

Men and women who have not yet learned to govern themselves, who have little influence in the town where they were born or in the community where their work is done, feel themselves to be challenged by the mighty problems which are shaking the foundations of every nation and are setting for us tasks which we shall be happy to see the end of in a hundred years. They talk, they write, they organize, they memorialize; they fill the mails with printed matter which nobody reads; and, in a rage for doing something, they fritter away their energies, and, instead of becoming moulders of the national fortunes, become at last themselves burdens to be carried and wrecks to be cared for. The man who is educated beyond his ability and cultivated beyond his power to perform becomes a sorry spectacle when middle life is passed. Some of the most pitiful and conspicuous wrecks which lie along the lines marked out by the ministry of religion, the demands of political life, and the needs of social upbuilding and control, are of those who essayed tasks for which they were not fitted and gave themselves to undertakings for which they had not sufficient strength and wisdom. Most of the ministers who come to grief because, as they think, they are the martyrs of a curse, fell by the wayside because they had no depth of earth. Had they been content to serve the humblest men and women who were put under their charge, to make little children their care, and to work outward from the center of the simple life and the excellent things of religion, they might have come, as many a simple pastor has, to greatness and renown, like Oberlin, for instance. They were not content with these humble tasks. They considered their learning, their ability, their desire to serve the world, wasted unless they could find a large platform for the exhibition of them or a large area in which they might be displayed and set to work. Simple souls, they did not know that, instead of using great opportunities, they were throwing away the only opportunities they had and making failure inevitable. Of all right things we may say.

"'Twas little at the first,
'Twas mighty at the last."

VOTES FOR WOMEN.

Editor GLENDAL NEWS:
I am very pleased to see the triple response which my moderate remarks on this question have called forth in the NEWS of last week, and hope many more will follow. Nevertheless I am surprised at what appears to have been a misreading of my letter on the part of your three correspondents, Emil Fram, "Reader," and Mrs. Gaylord, who all attack me as if I were entirely opposed to woman suffrage in any form. That such is not the case a perusal of my letter will easily show.

Emil Fram assumes the attitude of a prize fighter, squaring himself with fists up, bidding me to come on and he will immediately proceed to knock me down. Let me assure the belligerent Emil that there is no question between us on the principle of woman suffrage.

Mr. Fram's letter consists largely of quotations from mine, he says, however, that if universal male suffrage is a colossal mistake, that mistake was made by men, as if that were any reason at all why men should now make another colossal mistake by voting universal woman suffrage. If men truly realize the first mistake they will surely not be so foolish as to repeat it. Mr. Fram's witicism on my initials is amusing, and will doubtless raise a laugh at my expense, and on the principle that it is better to laugh than to cry, he is quite welcome to it.

Your correspondent "Reader" says "The many intelligent readers of the NEWS will be surprised that in beautiful progressive Glendale a man of such ideas can be found." Well, if he will refer to my letter he will see that I am an advocate of woman suffrage, and that I consider women have just as much right to vote as men. Why, then, should "Reader" be so surprised at my ideas on the question, which appears so identical with his own? The difference between us is only one of degree. But if he means I suspect he does that in "beautiful progressive Glendale" no antisuffragists are to be found, I can only imagine that he has exchanged opinions on the question with very few men in Glendale. So many advocates of woman suffrage speak of it as a right, which in my opinion is a great mistake; it is not a right, but only a question of expediency. A certain number of men and women should be selected to vote, and the fewer the better for the welfare of the country. Wisdom is not found in the multitude as history abundantly shows. So that the addition of the unintelligent and vicious votes of either sex only complicates the elections and adds enormously to their expense to no purpose.

Mrs. Gaylord modestly admits that women cannot be expected to "clean up politics" in a few years, which indicates that she does expect (by the superior virtues claimed for her sex, I suppose) to accomplish the "clean task some time in the distant future." To hold that the woman vote would appreciably ameliorate political conditions is, in my opinion sadly to mistake the cause and underestimate the extent of the trouble. The desired "clean up" of politics can only be accomplished by a more careful cultivation of the ethical faculty of both men and women, in fact of the whole population. We need more honesty in trade and commerce, in society and religion, more attention to duty and less to mere pleasure, and more obedience to properly constituted authority; none of these things can be acquired by legislation, but only by the sincere desire of all men and women to have it so.

Mrs. Gaylord says "We know that women are more virtuous than men." I must take exception to that statement, which I believe to be entirely without foundation in fact, and easily disproved by any one who will calmly take stock of his circle of acquaintance of both sexes. Using the term "virtue" in its wider and proper sense, the sexes will be found to be pretty evenly matched.

In conclusion Mrs. Gaylord charges me with insincerity, believing that I am really opposed to woman suffrage, and desire to introduce qualifications only in order to shelve the question indefinitely. Such, however, is not the case, for I hereby reaffirm my belief, that whatever qualification a voter should have, it should certainly not be one of sex, and that women should be equally entitled to vote as men. But to admit all women to the franchise would, in my opinion, be a grave political error duplicating that already made in adopting universal male suffrage. "If male suffrage is a mistake," says Mrs. Gaylord, "it is never too late to mend." Taking her to mean "universal male suffrage," a little reflection should convince her that she is mistaken. Suffrage is like matrimony, it cannot be experimented upon, on the give-it-up-if-you-don't-like-it principle. For suppose we desire to disfranchise a certain class of men, those very men would themselves have to vote on the amendment. So it is evident that if, as I contend, universal male suffrage is a serious mistake, it is certainly too late to mend it now. And that is why it should be the aim of all thoughtful men to avoid a repetition of the error by voting for the proposed amendment on woman suffrage. It is a great question in the decision of which we should not allow sentiment to close our judgment.

BAND CONCERTS.

A committee of the Valley Improvement Association has taken up the matter of securing funds for the putting up of a grandstand to be used in giving free open air concerts weekly during the summer. The site that seems to be most favored for the stand is in the neighborhood of Fourth and Jackson or Kenwood. The only expense to the public as we understand the matter will be the cost of the stand, as the band boys are willing to donate their services for the public good.

Final plans were made for a benefit tea and shower to be given at the home of Mrs. Frank Grosvenor of Hawthorne street for the Maternity hospital of Los Angeles on Friday, June 30th, at 2 p. m. All ladies whether members of this organization or not are invited to this entertainment. Mrs. Wayne P. Snow, Mrs. L. Wood and Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson were appointed to have charge of the details pertaining to this entertainment.

A picture for which all of the scenes were laid in Glendale and Verdugo Canyon was run for several nights this week in the motion picture theater here. The streets of Glendale, the buildings and the road to the park are perfectly recognizable. A suggestion would be to write to your eastern friends and relatives telling them that if they witness "The Mexican Fillibusters" by the Kalem company, they are "seeing Glendale." It gives a far more realistic impression than post cards ever would.

SCHOOL MEETING.

There will be a meeting of citizens at Odd Fellows hall next Saturday evening to further discuss school matters and give instructions to the trustees if desired to do so. It is understood that a large delegation will be present from Casa Verdugo to make known their desires in the matter. This delegation will probably either ask for a school house north of the wash, or declare their intention to secede from the Glendale school district.

Buried in Secret.
Two ancient kings were buried in secret. Attila, king of the Huns, after his siege of Rome, died in Hungary A. D. 453. His soldiers, desirous of giving their great leader a royal burial, inclosed his body first in a casket of gold, this in one of silver and this in one of lead, and transported it into a desert. There slaves were selected, and under the direction of men who were sworn to secrecy they dug the grave of the dead monarch. When this was accomplished no traces of the spot were left. The slaves were all cruelly slain.

Alaric, king of the Goths, the celebrated conqueror of Rome, died when with his army at Cozenza, south Italy. His men turned the course of a river, interred the body of their sovereign, with much treasure, in its bed, and restored the stream to its channel. No man has ever lighted on the resting place of either of these kings, who in this respect resemble Moses, of whom it is written, "No man knoweth of his sepulcher unto this day."

Died From Bad Writing.
German handwriting attains a degree of illegibility unknown in Latin script. A tragic instance of this fact was afforded by the death of Johann Bacher, an Austrian musician of the last century. Bacher spent most of his leisure for fifteen years in compiling a history of the Viennese opera. When the manuscript was completed he submitted it to the Imperial academy, which had promised to publish it. In three months it was returned with a statement that no member of the academy could decipher it. Bacher then sought to have it copied, but no copyist capable of deciphering it was to be found. As a last resource he determined to dictate his work to an amanuensis only to discover that the greater part of the manuscript was illegible even to himself. The thought of his wasted years of labor unhinged his brain, and in a fit of depression he committed suicide.

Going Back a Long Way.
Pick up any peacocks book and you will find it bristling with ancestral names whose presence is much more difficult to explain than that of the fly in the amber. And as you descend in the social scale the fictions multiply—from the pedigrees of the landed gentry to the family trees proudly cherished in hundreds of middle class homes. But these lineages, aspiring as they are, are of mushroom growth compared with many that are claimed with seeming honesty. At Mostyn hall you may see a vellum roll, seven yards long, headed by no less famous an ancestor than "Adam, son of God." Another pedigree at the college of heralds starts thus modestly with Adam and the garden of Eden, and Wales has many a family tree which traces descent with unerring hand from the same remote origin.

What Became of the Trousers.
Of Judge Parry's many stories of the Manchester county court that about the comedy of a man's Sunday trousers is one of the best. In the plaintiff's box was a woman, in the defendant's an elderly collier. The plaintiff stated her case: "I lent you mon's missis my mon's Sunday trousers to pay 'is rent with, an' I want 'em back." The defendant at first replied, "There's nowt in it at all." Pressed for a more definite reply, he scowled at the judge and protested, "Why, the 'ole street knows all about them trousers." But Judge Parry was not the "ole street," and he patiently encouraged the defendant to talk until he got the explanation. "Why, you woman, an my missis drank them Sunday trousers."—Westminster Gazette.

Catching Cuttlefish.
Cuttlefish require dextr handling. The bait, which consists of a rough chunk of fish fastened to a hook or even tied to a string, is not dropped over the side to be swallowed, but to excite the gustatory organs of the cuttle and to be slowly pulled up until those mol-lusks have reached the surface in a vain attempt to embrace it with their long arms. Then in a moment a gaff is plunged into the leathery mantle of the would be diner, and the creature is unceremoniously flung into the boat.

His Qualifications.
Writing to the leader of a string orchestra, an aspirant for a position was requested to state his qualifications. Complying by mail, he said, among other things:

"Yours rec'd. I can play the fiddle and some on tromboan, also silyfoan. Have played foot at parties, but prefer pickles. Resp't. O. M.
"P. S.—Have taken twelve lessons on the satar. Would be willing to teach myself the cornit. Termis, union rats. Resp't. O. M.
—New York Press.

A Double Barreled Grievance.
"What is Smith's grievance against the railway company?"
"He has two grievances. One of them is that some of the trains don't stop at his station and the other that after he gets in the trains they lose time by stopping at other stations."—London Telegraph.

Helping the Diagonals.
Doctor—My dear lady, you are in perfect health. I can't find a thing the matter with you. Patient—I wish you'd try again, doctor. I do so want to go away to recuperate.—Century.

There is nothing so easy but that it becomes difficult when you do it with reluctance.—Terence.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

"RIGHT AND DUTY OF WOMEN TO VOTE."

Analysis of the Subject by Sidney Dell, of Los Angeles Bar.

The publication of Mr. Sidney Dell's response to the toast on the man's right and duty to vote, at the Woman Suffrage banquet in Odd Fellows Hall, Glendale, Cal., Tuesday evening of last week was unanimously requested by the meeting, and the NEWS takes pleasure in complying. Rev. J. F. Humphrey was toastmaster. The response of Mr. Dell is set out in full below.

Response to Toast.

"I would ask all present, in response to that toast, 'The Right and Duty of Women to Vote,' to join me in a bumper of Adam's ale as being typical of the impending downfall of the saloon, the gambling hell and their chief ally, the Political Machine. I shall treat my theme from the standpoint of practical politics and practical results. There are three great factors, Madame President and Ladies, in the problem of Woman Suffrage. These are (1) the Duty-Bound Conscience, (2) the Home, and (3) the Nominating Convention. All will agree that the highest test of the abstract right to citizenship and suffrage in a republic is the possession of that noblest Civic Virtue, the Duty-Bound Conscience. Nor will it be disputed, I think, that, as a rule, in all the affairs of life, the woman is more duty-bound than the man.

Character, Mr. Toastmaster, is the cement and safety of the community. It springs from the Duty-Bound Conscience. The man who is careful to do his duty to his God and to his fellowman is the best citizen; the man or woman whose inner conscience impels him or her to do by his fellowman as that fellowman has a right to expect of him. Take the newsboy, for example, engaged in the simple duty of delivering circulars. The boy who, when his word is pledged, delivers these circulars under every door, even though no eye is upon him; the boy who can be relied upon at all times to perform his duty, that is, the boy who will make the reliable man, the prop of the community. Every one will pick him for their jobs—the people will pick him when grown up, to act for them in public affairs; that is to say, when the people shall recover their party primaries from the machine. That boy, we may be very sure, has been taught at his mother's knee, that performance of his duty to God and man is the highest civic virtue—the noblest concern of human life, the cement of society and the safety of the state. Such boys, or girls, have the Duty-Bound Conscience. They make the best citizens and the safest voters.

The Home, Mr. Toastmaster, is the special trust reposed by God Himself in our women. A happy and prosperous home is the chief concern in the life of every true woman. She gives it her most earnest devotion; she stands ready, if need be, to die in its defense, for its protection. The Home, Mr. Toastmaster, is also the safe temporary or permanent, located near the homes, in the center of the precinct, and to be made as safe as a church, (4) a majority vote for delegates, and (5) binding instructions on the delegates to the nominating conventions. In a word, make it a Home institution, protected by safe laws, where our women, undisturbed by the male set or the scarlet woman, can see to it that the best men or women in the community are sent as delegates to select their candidates and mark out the laws for the Home. Over a quarter century ago I was an active expert in politics. I know every step in the game. I quit, because the Machine had control of the nominating conventions and had the press muzzled against any real reform in the party primaries. I am returning now, however, to the struggle, because I feel renewed hope with the rise of the Woman's Star in the political firmament. The party primary system which I have devised covers fully all these points and will secure to our women their full influence in the nominating conventions. I hope soon to get the money that will enable me to submit the system to the women of California, and especially to the Women's Clubs, whose influence it would specially enlist in this greatest struggle of the age. It will, I am sure, enable our good and enfranchised women to protect their homes and purity politics at the fountains without giving up a single home duty or being contaminated in any possible way by "dabbling in the filthy pool of politics," as the phrase goes.

A half century ago, in my boyhood, woman suffrage was an academic question only, led by a few bright old maids and soured wives, but given, owing to a peculiar phase of the agitation. Now the situation has changed. It is now the burning question of the hour, with the loyal wives enlisted in its behalf. In the old time the agitation was based on woman's claim to vote as a personal privilege or right. Now the SLOGAN is based on Woman's duty to protect the Home. At the start it was based on the Declaration of Independence, which asserted that all men are created free and equal and that "taxation without representation is tyranny." The old maids and soured wives gave it hard to the men and husbands as being, like King George, tyrants for refusing the loyal wives gave it the cold shoulder. The burning question now is one of practical politics, making it the highest duty of every loyal wife to vote in protection of Home and Liberty, against a mighty Oligarchy in alliance with the Saloon, the Outlaws, the Professional Politicians and the Mighty Interests. On that issue, the loyal wives will rally to the standard of woman suffrage and do or die in the cause of their homes and loved ones.

But it is urged that women have not the right to vote, because they cannot bear arms in the wars their votes might bring on. I answer that clergymen are exempt from military duty, yet they vote. The same is true of that for which they are ready to die. These be the vestal virgins of the temple of liberty, given us by the Creator. Sir, I assert, as a clear axiom of political science, that woman's mission in politics is to guard the party primary, because it means protection of her home. When the loyal wives of this land shall realize this grand truth they will, to the last man of them, be eager to vote and will see that their men folks do the same, especially at the primaries. This full attendance will destroy the machine. It will purify the government at its fountains with the grandest results in history. Failure to some extent of woman suffrage to bring about such a result in Colorado and elsewhere was due to the single fact that the women, under existing laws, have, practically, had no voice in the nominating conventions—the party primaries. Sporadic cases, though like that of Judge Ben Lindsey, show what they would do if they had their just influence in the nominations. The direct primary is very well for a temporary expedient in turning out the present corrupt machine. But it does not organize the masses, especially the women, in each party in each precinct so they can have their rightful influence in the nominations against the new machine that must, of necessity, spring up to guide into concert the unorganized masses of each party against the old corrupt machine. The great problem of the age, in representative free government, is not only to turn the old machine out of control of the party nominations but to put the organized masses, especially the women, into control of them permanently. That is the struggle for liberty and for the home in which, as can be clearly demonstrated, the Queen Bee is the most important factor and a sure-winning card—creating, therefore, the most important and solemn DUTY ever imposed upon the good women and loyal wives of our land. A word about the Queen Bee, Mr. Toastmaster. An expert naturalist, at my home in North Glendale, recently said to me: "I take the deepest interest in a bee hive. There are 90,000 industrious and orderly workers in each hive, all directed by one of their number." "The Queen Bee," I shouted when the force of this argument in nature for woman suffrage flashed upon me. The woman's vote is the Queen Bee in any successful party primary system. I play it for the winning card in a system I have devised, based on the system of the fathers of the republic. That system of the fathers had FIVE chief elements, as any old politician will tell you. These, as revised by me, are (1) a mass meeting, (2) of the party voters in the precinct, or small political unit, (3) in a town hall, temporary or permanent, located near the homes, in the center of the precinct, and to be made as safe as a church, (4) a majority vote for delegates, and (5) binding instructions on the delegates to the nominating conventions. In a word, make it a Home institution, protected by safe laws, where our women, undisturbed by the male set or the scarlet woman, can see to it that the best men or women in the community are sent as delegates to select their candidates and mark out the laws for the Home. Over a quarter century ago I was an active expert in politics. I know every step in the game. cripples and old men. Yet the clergy are invaluable to a successful war because of their influence on the soldiers. The old men, too, supply the statesmanship without which no war can be carried on. While our women do not go into battle, yet it is their spirit that makes heroes of their sons, husbands and brothers. "Come home with your shield or upon it" was the clarion cry of the Spartan mother that made the greatest soldiers of the Grecian republic. Besides that, no war could last long if our women were not in the rear looking after the well being of the soldiers in the field. Not only so, Mr. Toastmaster, but the women's vote would always be for peace; and war would have her approval only when the Home and the firesides were in jeopardy.

Madame President and Ladies: My deliberate judgment and the profoundest conviction of my life is that woman's right to vote is beyond question and her duty to exercise that right is one of the grandest truths of modern times.

SAN DIEGO'S

Panama-California Exposition Opening Ceremonies July 19th

San Diego, Cal., May 31.—After months of toil and planning the ground breaking ceremonies preliminary to the work of construction of the Panama-California Exposition are now practically arranged. There will be four days and nights of pageantry and carnival interspersed with various entertainment projects such as only San Diego can offer and make possible.

On the morning of the opening day, July 19, religious services will be held in Balboa Park, during which a pontifical high mass will be said by Bishop Conaty at an immense floral altar which is to be a replica of the famous altar in the church of San Francisco, Mexico City.

The formal exercises of the celebration open in the afternoon when ground will be broken by the directors of the Panama-California Exposition in the presence of a host of distinguished guests from all parts of this state and nation. In the evening of that day there will be a big display of fireworks on the bay and the reception throughout the city of all the guests who may visit the celebration.

The second day will open with a floral pageant and the reception of Queen Ramona and her court. Athletic events will occupy the afternoon. In the evening there will be a historical pageant including the great events leading up to the discovery and first settlement of California. The water carnival in this feature of the program will include the arrival and landing of Cabrillo, his reception by the Indians of San Diego and a welcome by the officials who will give him the freedom of the city in due form.

The third day will include an industrial and civic parade in the morning; water sports in the afternoon and a masque ball in the evening, with receptions at headquarters of the various fraternal and civic societies.

Pageantry and Aviation.
On the fourth day the pageantry of the California missions will take place presenting the twenty-one missions founded by the Franciscan Fathers, around which will be grouped characters costumed to represent the historical and traditional events of each mission. In the afternoon there will be an aviation meet and an automobile race. The evening will be given up to carnival festivities and farewell to King Cabrillo and Queen Ramona.

Will Cost $50,000.

The entire cost of the four days of pageantry and carnival will be approximately $50,000. Most of this expense will be the big parades. The Missal parade will cost in the neighborhood of about $15,000. The historical parade and water carnival will be at the expense of the committee on celebration. The industrial and floral parades are contributions of the fraternal and civic societies of the city and there will be prizes for the best display in decorations and for floats.

MONTHLY BULLETIN OF CALIFORNIA DEVELOPMENT BOARD.

May was, like April, a cold month. There was one brief spell of warm weather near the end of the second decade, but no extremely high temperature was recorded. In the main the month has been one of cold, somewhat cloudy weather, with the usual amount of fog along the coast. From an agricultural point of view conditions are excellent and with the exception of the spring frosts, which damaged fruits somewhat, near the middle of April, the season has been an ideal one, although late.

The rainfall during May was not up to normal. There is, however, an abundance of water for all purposes. Snow in the mountains is melting slowly and large amounts remain in localities which are normally free of snow at the close of May.

The quality of the fruit promises well. A large number of new trees will come into bearing this season, and this will help to make the crop a normal one, if not above normal.

Cherry shipments are continuing, and the fruit is bringing good prices; one carload brought $5554, the record price. Apricot shipments are beginning well.

Citrus fruit to date are over 35,000 carloads, some 10,000 carloads ahead of last year at this time.

Barley, wheat and oats promise well and are heading out strong. Hay also looks well, as does alfalfa.

Sugar beet acreage in old localities is much enlarged and new districts are being brought under cultivation.

Bean acreage will also be enlarged. Dairying and poultry industries are thriving and being enlarged to meet the home demand.

Farmers and fruit growers generally view the outlook quite optimistically. Building operations, public, railroad and private, are active and much new work is projected.

Transportation facilities are being largely extended on steam, electric and water lines. Four new steel bridges are projected across the Sacramento, one at the Capital City and three in Tehama county.

New companies for reclamation and irrigation projects are entering the field. Many new settlers are coming in. Business in general is lively and healthy. Gold mining, both dredge and quartz, is active and some good results are being had.

Oil development continues and new pipelines to the coast are projected. New uses for the product brighten the outlook.

CHAPTER X.

KEVIN did not laugh outright, but he came near it. "You have tried that, haven't you?" he ventured.

"Only in a minor degree," declared Breed, "but found no trouble about it."

"No," admitted Phillip, "you had no trouble about it. When your agents found they could not influence certain papers they took others, and they took the easiest ones and the ones least worth while. Remember that the majority stockholders of practically every one of these roads are the public. In order to reach them you must completely control almost every paper in the land, and even you have not enough money. You cannot subsidize the press of the United States. Count that as final."

Breed nodded. He remembered one or two disastrous experiments during his early operations. "What, then, do you propose?" he asked. "From your attitude you evidently have in mind a plan of action."

"I am not quite ready to lay it before you," replied Phillip. "It still requires some figuring."

Breed frowned. "Don't get too high handed, young man," he warned. "Remember that, after all, I am providing the weight which gives our plans momentum."

"Mr. Breed," said Phillip, rising, "any time you object to my methods tell me to go, and it won't require your private militia to put me out of the grounds. I was worth two and a half million dollars when I came to you, and this you cannot take from me. I am here with you, however, because I want to use the enormous power of your money for purposes of my own. Aside from these purposes, which are not a matter of life and death to me, I assure you, I don't need you or your money."

Breed looked at him a moment, then lay back in his chair and rubbed his hands together and chuckled until it threw him into a fit of coughing. "Go ahead, my boy, and see who gets the most out of it. I wouldn't part with you for anything. This two million and a half of yours, by the way, is it to cash?"

"No," replied Phillip; "it is in highly profitable oil, coal and iron lands, into the extension of which my profits are going as fast as I am making them. I hypothesized them in order to get in on our Stock Exchange deal, but immediately removed that incumbrance as soon as the deal was concluded. So far as the cash is concerned, I would rather you should have it than I; it has so much more weight when thrown into one pile."

Again Henry Breed lay back and chuckled, and he followed Phillip out of the room with extremely friendly eyes.

Mrs. Rensselaer, always drowsy after a meal and always fighting off that drowsiness for reasons not entirely unconnected with embonpoint, sat upon the balcony outside her own apartments after the early dinner customary at Forest Lakes. Young Rensselaer and Elsie White came strolling from toward the back of the house, talking quite earnestly, and struck out into the southwest roadway. Mrs. Rensselaer stiffened. It was perfectly disgraceful of Herbert so far to forget his station in life.

From the front porch Phillip and Lillian stepped down and strode up the northwest path, Lillian clinging to Phillip's arm and chattering volubly, even excitedly. Mrs. Rensselaer, estimable lady, arose at once.

"How indiscreet!" she murmured. "I must see that the dear child is instantly chaperoned."

She went quickly down the stairs, and at a turn in the road she saw them, under the dim avenue of trees just ahead of her.

Even as she looked she saw Lillian suddenly turn and throw her arms about Phillip. For a moment she stopped to gasp and then hurried on with an intention born of anger. What had really happened was that Lillian had stepped upon a loose, round stone and had slightly turned her foot. Instantly she had wheeled and clutched at Phillip for support.

"I beg your pardon," said Mrs. Rensselaer coldly; "I seem to be interrupting something of an entirely personal nature."

"Appearances are deceitful," replied Phillip, laughing and concealing the trepidation of his voice as best he could. "I fancy that Miss Lillian has sprained her ankle, and I think that she is faint."

"If Miss Lillian were to choose less dim paths for her strolls she would not be in such danger," quoth Mrs. Rensselaer-dryly. "As her chaperon I must ask both of you to be a little more circumspect in the future. Come with me, Lillian."

She led the girl away unresisting. Her limp was slight, but she tottered as she walked. Her hand as Mrs. Rensselaer took it and put it in her arm was flaccid and cold with moisture. Mrs. Rensselaer looked back, expecting Phillip to come with them and offer to assist Lillian home, but he stood in the same spot, numbed, not even thinking.

Mrs. Rensselaer and Lillian had no sooner turned the bend in the road than a tall, gaunt form sprang from among the shrubbery at the roadside. Strong, lank hands clutched Phillip by the shoulders, and a pair of eyes, phosphorescent in the dimness, like a cat's, blazed into his.

"Let her alone!" blazed the voice of Blagg. "You don't care for her. Let her alone!"

"Take your hands from my shoulders!" commanded Phillip firmly.

"Let her alone, I say!" repeated Blagg fiercely.

"I'll give you just one more second of warning," cautioned Phillip, drawing up his arms and clinching his fists. Neither one had time for parley, however, for a huge black shape hurled itself upon Blagg like a whirlwind, huge black fingers seized him by the throat, and a huge black body bore him to the ground.

Kevin sprang forward in fright.

"Sam!" he cried. "Sam, Sam, Sam!" In desperation to save Blagg's life Phillip hauled back and gave the negro a resounding kick in the side. With a loud aspirated "Huh!" Sam suddenly relaxed, but still his heavy body hung poised over that of Blagg, with his weight upon the man's throat. Now, however, it was no task for Kevin, stooping down, to topple Sam over.

Phillip bent over Blagg and loosened his collar and was fanning him. "Sam," said he sharply, "there is a spring down there in the ravine. Hurry and get some water in your hat."

"Ah, hope Ah ain't done gone an' done no damage to 'im, Mistuh Phillip," said Sam contritely.

"Hurry and get that water," ordered Phillip. "Remember, Sam, next time to give me a chance to handle my own difficulties."

"Yas, sah," said Sam as he plunged over the bank.

He brought water, but it took some time to revive Blagg. When he rose to his feet there was a little trickle of blood running from the corner of his mouth, and Phillip offered him a handkerchief.

"Never mind," said Blagg, waving it away. He was quite himself and refused any assistance. He started toward the house, wiping his lips with his own handkerchief and feeling his neck. He staggered for a few paces, then squared his shoulders and walked sturdily away.

Phillip, having seen Rollins safely off, walked into Breed's study confidently the next morning. "It is going to cost you something to get those proxies. I can't tell you how to subsidize the newspapers, but I know how to subsidize the public," said Phillip, with a smile, and handed Breed a sheet of paper.

Breed glanced at it and elevated his eyebrows; then he whistled. "This is going to cost an enormous amount of money," he declared.

"It would seem so at first," admitted Phillip, "but here are the figures," and he handed Breed another sheet of paper.

Breed studied this latter long and earnestly; then he rose and gave Kevin his hand. "Young man," he exclaimed, "if heaven had only blessed me with a son or a grandson like you!"

"It is a pity that your granddaughter was not born a boy," suggested Phillip.

Breed shook his head and sighed. "It is a gift that she was not," he replied. "That is the only family luck for which I have to be thankful. No human being susceptible to emotion or sentiment can ever rise to great achievement!"

Phillip colored slightly, and Breed's sharp eyes caught the flush. He raised a warning finger.

"Remember, young man," said he, "that it is in youth these things must be fought. Were it not for that old age would have no chance in this world for preformation. In the meantime go ahead with your scheme of subsidy. At what time does your plan include making the attempt for proxies?"

"Within two weeks," replied Kevin.

"If you will excuse me I will put this on the wire at once."

With some curiosity, remembering the events of the night before, he went into Blagg's room.

"Good morning," said Kevin. "Here is some stuff I wish to get off."

Blagg looked it over, then read it more carefully and nodded his head. "This is your scheme," he declared familiarly. "Of course there is an ulterior motive behind it, but even so this is an act that will work real good to the people, and it will operate in Breed's favor when the day of accounting comes."

"The day of accounting?" repeated Phillip.

"Yes," replied Blagg. "There is always a day of reckoning, isn't there?"

"Possibly," agreed Phillip dryly. "In the meantime you might get the message away."

For the ensuing month there was a new order of things. Phillip had never sought Lillian, but now he avoided her persistently. The propaganda he had put forth soon began to bear results. Breed would not say how well pleased he was with the outcome as clippings began to pour in from the bureau of his New Jersey offices, but secretly he was delighted, and daily he went down into the vault and glistened over the money that was there. Meanwhile Phillip delved into fresh statistics, covering wider and still wider plans of which Breed knew nothing, and Blagg practiced upon his combination lock.

The name of Breed was now upon every lip. It had always been, for that matter, but in terms of execration. Now that sentiment was tempered. There were thousands of columns of editorials printed about him and his great philanthropic movement.

Phillip's plan had been very simple. It was merely the issuance to the newspapers of this proclamation:

Beginning tomorrow, the price of bread, of the same weight and quality as heretofore, will be reduced throughout the United States from 5 to 4 cents a loaf. This price will continue until a committee, to be selected by the public, can determine from my books and records the actual cost of bread delivered to the consumer immediately upon that investigation bread will be provided at actual cost. I have made my fortune and desire no more. From this day on my bread factories shall be run in the interest of the public alone.

HENRY BREED.

There it was—broad at cost! It was the most tremendous sensation that had ever been given space in the papers since Breed had completed his consolidation of all the cereal food industries in the United States. No argument could hold against that. It was an argument which was additionally clinched every time a man bought six loaves of bread for a quarter and received a penny in change.

At exactly the psychological moment Phillip launched his campaign for the control of railroad stocks, and for thirty days there waged the great battle of the proxies, a battle no less bitter because silent, no less ferocious because unseen, no less relentless because there was no bloodshed.

A Few Thoughts on Money.
Money, otherwise known as tin, dough, cash, gelt, rocks, etc. The corpuscles of national circulation which indicate the strength of our constitution.

It is often called a curse. Some swear by it, others swear for it, and still others swear at it.

It often causes a species of mental derangement or delirium called money mania. Many are willing to be thus inoculated.

It is the feature of social distinction. It is the measure of intelligence—those who have it are wise, those who have it not are foolish. Possession of it entitles one to the use of a money-gram.

Though a medium of exchange, it has no connection with souls or astral bodies.

It is the religion of today, often called moneyism. Preachers pray for it; laymen lay for it.

It is the be all and the end all. Children cry for it, women sigh for it, men die for it, and all lie for it.—Smart Set.

Wrecked by a Knife Blade.

A ship was once wrecked on the Irish coast. The captain was a careful one. Nor had the weather been so severe a kind as to explain the wide distance which the vessel had swerved from her proper course. The ship went down, but so much interest attached to the disaster that a diving bell was sunk. Among other portions of the vessel that were examined was the compass that was swung on the deck, and inside the compass box was detected a bit of steel, which appeared to be the small point of a pocket-knife blade. It was learned that the day before the wreck a sailor who had been sent cleaning the compass had used his pocket knife in the process and had unconsciously broken off the point and left it remaining in the box. That bit of knife blade exerted its influence on the compass and to a degree that deflected the needle from its proper bent and vitiated it as an index of the ship's direction. That bit of knife blade wrecked the vessel.

Scotch Students.

Many a man who never had any "schooling" gets an education, and often a surprisingly good one.

A traveler in Scotland once met a farmer whose ground rent was about $20 a year and who wrote poetry in Gaelic that was of a high order.

This same traveler met a youth in Scotland who rode from home on horseback to the seaport and then across Scotland to Aberdeen, where he sold his horse to enter the university.

It is related of another Scotchman that he was overheard repeating a line of Tennyson, whereupon some one asked him what poet he liked best.

"Homer," he replied.

"Whose translation do you read?"

"I rarely read a translation," he said, wiping the fish scales from his apron. "I like best to read Homer in the original Greek."—Minneapolis Tribune.

All About a Cruiser.

"What sort of a boat is this?" inquired the inquisitive man at the docks.

"A cruiser," replied a smart lad.

"And where is she going?"

"A cruise, sir."

"What makes it go?"

"It's screw, sir."

"Who are on board?"

"It's crew, sir."

"It looks pretty smart."

"We have to keep it clean, or rubbish and dust would accrue, sir."

"Oh, you're too smart! Where do you come from?"

"From Crewe, sir."—London Tit-Bits.

Manhattan Scallop.

A delicious breakfast or luncheon dish is Manhattan scallop. Shred sufficient cold cooked fish to measure a good half pint. It must be free from skin and bone. Add to it one cupful of fine stale breadcrumbs, a good seasoning of salt and pepper, two well beaten eggs mixed with a half cupful of stewed tomatoes. Turn all into a buttered dish, sprinkle the top with buttered breadcrumbs, dot with bits of butter and brown in a hot oven.—Suburbanite.

Sizes of the Planets.

An ingenious way of comparing the sizes of planets with the sun is suggested by a French scientific writer. Let the earth, he says, be represented by a twenty franc piece; then Venus is 15 francs; Mars, 2; Mercury, 7; Uranus, 250; Neptune, 320; Saturn, 1,840; Jupiter, 8,500, and the sun 6,750,000.

A Time For Blindness.

There is sometimes a greater charity in seeming not to see our neighbor's trouble than in trying to relieve it. "Let me alone!" is the prayer of many a tortured heart when the curious, the officious and the tactless force the door of its place of desolation, albeit they bring wine and oil.

Looked Like a Big Dose.

Questions and Answers.

The time elapsing between a question and an answer is almost as important as the answer itself. It may be wisely long or short, but the longer it is the wiser must be the answer.

Robert Taylor of this place, had the honor of presenting a banner to the I.O.G.T. lodge of Lordsburg, recently, the banner having been given by the district lodge.

Mr. J. A. Light, road master for Tropic district and one of the old residents of the valley, has been very ill for the past week. As we go to press this condition is reported as improved but is still serious.

A meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce room last Friday evening for the purpose of taking the initial steps toward organizing a Knights of Pythias lodge at this place.

Rev. C. B. Hatch, pastor of the Tropic Presbyterian church, returned to his home last Friday, after a visit of several weeks in the East. He reports a delightful journey, but tells us that he sure is glad to get back to "slow" Tropic.

Guy Maxwell of Park avenue, who for the past nine months has been in the Sierra County, Cal., arrived last week in Tropic and will enjoy a lengthy vacation with his parents. Mr. Maxwell has been in the employ of the Oak Mining company and has been demonstrating the commercial success of a new gold-saving machine.

A committee of ladies of the Tropic Thursday Afternoon club gave a social dance in Logan's hall on San Fernando road last Saturday evening. The hall was comfortably filled and the evening was much enjoyed. The proceeds of the event will be used toward helping to meet the final payment on the lot which the ladies are purchasing upon which to erect the Tropic Public library.

Jimmie Moore was seriously injured recently while riding his motorcycle in Griffith Park. He was riding along one of the roads when an automobile came rapidly around one of the sharp curves and met Moore's machine head-on. The result was that the motorcycle was demolished and Jimmie was badly hurt. The driver of the machine did not stop and Jimmie was picked up and brought to Tropic by a machine which came along a little later.

The regular annual memorial sermon before the Odd Fellows and Rebekah lodges of this valley will be delivered in the First Methodist church of Tropic on Palmer avenue, by Rev. W. C. Bockin, pastor of the church, next Sunday morning. Last year Mr. Bockin delivered the memorial sermon before these bodies and this year he delivers the sermon upon request. Any members of these orders visiting in the valley and those living here, but not members of the local branches are cordially invited to attend.

GRADUATES ARE NAMED.

The graduation exercises of the Tropic Grammar school were held Thursday evening in the Union High School building. The members of the graduating class are: Misses Lillian Leppleman, Angelina Cartoto, Amy Miller, Ethel Rhodes, Essie Hamilton, Dorothy Leach, Clementina Wilkes, Mildred Prescott, Minnie Pohland, Pauline Hamilton, Jessie Fishel, Mattie Cramer; Messrs. Donald Murray, Lawrence Dutton, Harold Latter, Walter Cramer, Alphonso Moniot and Donald Story.

All the teachers of the Tropic school have been retained the coming year.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

Mrs. E. W. Richardson, assisted by Mrs. A. P. Stone, entertained the club at her home June 1.

Delegates and other members of the club who attended the State Federation meeting at Long Beach gave a most interesting and complete account of the convention.

The annual business meeting and luncheon will be held at the home of the club president, Mrs. Charles A. Barker, June 15. This is the last meeting of the year, and every member should be present.

The club picnic held May 30 at Verdugo Park was an unqualified success. About forty persons gathered at the noon hour and enjoyed a sumptuous repast under the trees, after which they explored the park and enjoyed a good ball game.

Mrs. Edward Lynch entertained

Thursday last with a baby party in honor of Master Gordon Howard Wat-

tes. There were twelve tiny tots present, and each little guest carried away a souvenir plaything from the grab basket. Those present were Alice Trendell, Julia Pelly, Mildred Randolph, Gwendoline Merrill, Genevieve Lynch, Gene Sellman, Lena Borthick, Kenneth Howe, Gordon Wattles, Chandler Weston, Bert Richardson and Alfred Leaman.

SHOWER GIVEN POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE.

A miscellaneous shower was given in the Tropic Methodist church Tuesday evening to Miss Jennie Angel of this place and Harry Dotson of Los Angeles, who will be married in the late summer. The shower was planned by the ladies of the church, and was one of the prettiest and most enjoyable of its kind ever held in this place.

Pink and green was the color scheme used in the decoration of the auditorium, where the affair was held. Yards of pink crepe paper were used in the center of the room a large canopy of flowers and paper was hung from the chandeliers. Crepe paper was draped from the chandeliers to different parts of the room, and many large bouquets placed upon stands and tables made the room appear real pretty.

As the guests entered they were given slips of paper upon which to write wishes. They were made into a book and presented to the bride-to-be as a souvenir of the occasion. The next game played was the heart-collecting contest. Many hearts were cut into quarters and thrown about the rooms. The object was to put as many hearts together as possible. The winner received a dainty prize.

Following the heart game came the shower. Mr. Dotson was blindfolded, and while wheeling a wheelbarrow was driven by Miss Angel around the rooms, finally stopping at a table in the center of the hall and immediately beneath the canopy of bloom. At this point the honored guests unwrapped the gifts and placed them upon the table where those present could view them. Other enjoyable features made the evening pass only too rapidly.

During the evening a short and select program was rendered. Refreshments consisting of fruitade and cake were served.

A cordial invitation is given every one to attend these meetings. Cottage prayer meetings are being held at the homes of different members of the church also, with a very good attendance at each one.

Cleo Hartley, Walter Peters and Howard Elliott enjoyed a trip to Santa Monica on Sunday. The day was spent in fishing at Port Los Angeles, a dip in the plunge and a genuine good time. The boys left the beach at 5:30, and arrived home by the way of Soldiers' Home and Hollywood, at 7:45. Not content with this trip, one of the boys, Cleo Hartley, together with Willard Leonard, left Tuesday morning on their wheels for Huntington Beach, to visit for a few days with their former school mate, Charles Decker.
